6. Birbeck, University of London
"Deconstruction Is/In Law"
Wednesday 02 July 2014 - 10.30am to 5.00pm

"This year marks the tenth anniversary of Jacques Derrida's death. From the earliest days of Critical Legal Studies to contemporary scholarship, Derrida's thought has provided a rich resource for critical engagements with the law. From his provocative assertion that "deconstruction is justice" to his important interventions on questions of sovereignty, hospitality and (through his posthumously published seminars) the death penalty, Derrida has become essential reading for any critical approach to law and legality. This event brings together Derridian legal scholars and theorists for renewed reflection on the enduring legacy of deconstruction for the study of law.
