"'Everything is Queer To day': Lewis Carroll's Alice Through the Jungian Looking Glass."
Clifton Snider [http://www.csulb.edu/~csnider/Lewis.Carroll.html]
"From 'Further insights'." Géza Róheim (1955)
"From 'The Character of Dodgson as revealed in the Writings of Carroll'." Phyllis Greenacre (1955)
"From 'The Thinking of the Body': Comments on the Imagery of Catharsis in Literature'."
Kenneth Burke (1966)
" 'We're all mad here. I'm mad. You're mad.' The Alice Books and the Professional Literature of Psychology and Psychiatry." Jason Beckman, 2012.[http://www.victorianweb.org/authors/carroll/beckman2.html]
"About the Symbolization of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland."
"All on a Golden Afternoon." Robert Bloch. Fantasy and Science Fiction (June 1956).
"Psychoanalytic Remarks on Alice in Wonderland and Lewis Carroll." Paul Schilder. The Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases 87 (1938): 159-68.
Essential papers on literature and psychoanalysis, Emanuel Berman (Éditeur), New York, New York University press, 1993
Psychoanalysis and literature, Hendrik Marinus Ruitenbeek, Dutton, 1964